MYSTERY NIGHT FIRE SWEEPS THREE SAN PABLO BUILDINGS

ALAMEDA MAN SAYS HE WAS TREATED LIKE P. E. PETERSEN

Richmond, Cal., October 16, 1916.
Editor Record-Herald:

I am an entire stranger in your city and believe that your people desire the stranger within your gates to have fair play. Will you allow me to state that an attack upon myself by the Daily Independent of Saturday last is entirely unwarranted and without fact?

I called at the office to get a paper, handed the reporter or whoever he was, my card and he immediately engaged me in conversation, telling me a lot of the troubles your city has been having over police matters and apparently taking active sides against the police. I incidentally stated that I had been in San Quentin on a contract and had used prisoners as helpers while there, and had seen many things that I did not consider proper treatment of prisoners, and that when I was through I had written an article (not many special articles as it stated) which was printed in the Los Angeles Times and which led to the introduction of a proposed law at the last session of the legislature, which although not passed, led to a revision of the prison rules giving the results desired. I stated that the prison committee of the legislature listened with much attention for almost a whole afternoon to my story at Sacramento, which is true, but made no reference to the police departments of any or "many" cities. I stated that I took an active part in the Alameda Taxpayers Protective league, having written its constitution and that was all I did say. The balance of that "bull" e-tin is pure "hop."

I want to tell your people how I was treated in this matter and allow them to see what kind of a police department they have themselves. My sole and only reason for reporting to the mayor the striking of an absolutely helpless drunk was that I considered it brutal and entirely uncalled for in the first place, as the man was not attempting to get away or fight the officers who were three to one, and was not using any loud, profane or obscene language. The only words I heard him utter were pleadings not to strike him again and claiming to be acquainted with Kirkpatrick, who struck him. It he did swear at Kirkpatrick, as they claim, they provoked him to it by first attempting to have some fun joshing a drunk and should have taken their medicine as any man does who joshes a drunk. My second object was sympathy for the drunken man himself for I know from the heartrending stories of many prisoners that it is just this abuse by officers who are by law required to be protectors of the helpless that makes the incurable hatred prisoners have toward the officers. I could take a whole evening to relate to your people the many cases that came under my observation. I presumed the men would be called before the mayor and given the proper corrections and never dreamed I had touched off a powder magazine. I knew absolutely no faction in your city and had only heard of the Petersen case through the San Francisco papers. Apparently I am getting the same man-handling Rev. Petersen got.

I was never notified of the meeting Friday night, although making the charges, by either the mayor or the chief of police, and but for the fact that Mr. Ludewig suspected the same and came out to where I was working about 5 p. m., I would not have been present. I was called Days have gone by since the district attorney's office should have acted in the redlight abatement cases in and about Richmond in connection with the affidavit filed by Rev. P. E. Petersen. While there is no disposition to rush matters at all, still it might be supposed that time enough has elapsed to secure some action, especially when it is considered that several private persons throughout the county have gone before the court in similar cases and secured almost immediate results.

For instance, Attorney Alvin Gerlack, as president of the Richmond Welfare league, has succeeded in putting out of business at least three of these houses and there are others which will be taken care of in the near future. The Welfare league has made an exceptional good record for the time it has been working. Equally as good work has been accomplished by the sheriff's office in the vicinity of Pittsburg and Antioch. If the same results cannot be obtained by the district attorney's office the people all over the county are wondering

WHY?

R. R. PROPERTY ON WATERFRONT CAUSE OF MEET

After attending the meeting of the League of California Municipalities at Visalia, City Attorney D. J. Hall went to Los Angeles where he conferred with the Santa Fe railroad officials relative to crossings over their Oakland branch in this city and rights to certain property on the outer waterfront.

The Santa Fe holds the title to certain land near the municipal wharf which the city is planning to dredge a channel through.

CHARGES FLYING AT CHIEF OF POLICE

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Ten police captains were in readiness today to testify in the hearing of the charges brought by State's Attorney Macley Hoyne against Chief of Police Healey before Chief Justice Olson of the municipal court. A minister, the Rev. Myron E. Adams, pastor of the All Night church in East Congress street, was to provide the police officials with evidence as to conditions in the old vice district.

MOB DEMANDS NEGRO ACCUSED OF CRIME

PADUCAH, Ky., Oct. 16.—A mob formed at the jail here today and demanded possession of a negro charged with an attack upon Mrs. George Rose, wife of an Illinois Central shopman, at her home on the outskirts of the city Friday. Police reserves were called and city and county officials united in pleading with the mob to disperse. The city was in an uproar, but police reports were that the mob had refused to listen to the pleadings of the officers and had broken into the jail. All prisoners, it was said, previously had been placed in steel cages.

BULLET SPILLS BROKEN GLASS ALL ABOUT MAN

H. W. Howe, manager of the Richmond theater, had a narrow escape from almost instant death this morning when a bullet crashed through the window of a Richmond car, shattering glass all about him.

The accident occurred two blocks south of University avenue. A woman passenger on the car, sitting near Howe, was about to leave the car when the crash came, the bullet striking past her face.

A near panic followed the affair. Official of the traction company are making an investigation of the shooting.

PASTEURIZED MILK TALK AT MEET DR. BLAKE TELLS OF ITS RESULTS

Less typhoid fever, fewer deaths and better health for this city was told in a lecture which City Health Officer Dr. C. R. Blake delivered on "Richmond's pasteurized milk ordinance" before the recent meeting of the League of California Municipalities at Visalia.

The pasteurizing of the milk according to Dr. Blake does away with intestinal diseases in infants. Upon his return from the conven-

NEW CHIEF OF POLICE STARTS VICE CRUSADE

DETROIT, Oct. 16.—Few glasses tinkled in saloons in this city Sunday; there is quiet to the point of rigidity in the favorite haunts of card players who engaged in games of chance for so much an "ante" and "hand book men" are maintaining a submissive silence, for James Couzens, Detroit's new commissioner of police, said to be the only multimillionaire in the United States holding such an office, is waging a vigorous campaign.

CONSTABLE IS MAKING PROBE OF FIRES FOR ARSON CAUSE

Three mystery fires within a period of 48 hours with a loss of $8000 are being investigated by Constable Frank Moltoza at San Pablo. Owner of the buildings and their losses follow:

A. E. Williams, 1225 Jefferson street, Oakland, $2500.
Mrs. Zelia Delipe, San Pablo, $2000.
A. Collett, Merchant, San Pablo, $1500.

The homes of Williams and Mrs. Delipe were burned to the ground Saturday night. The Collett building burned last night.

According to Collett he had locked his store and gone to visit a neighbor near the Western Pottery factory when he was informed that the barn at the rear of his store was ablaze. Before he reached the scene of the first fire he had caught fire. Assisted by neighbors he managed to save part of his stock.

Neither the Williams nor Delipe cottages were occupied at the time of their burning.

NOTES FROM THE PLAYHOUSES

OAKLAND ORPHEUM

It would have been difficult to find a more delightful vaudeville program to open the "all vaudeville season" at the Oakland Orpheum yesterday, than that which graced the boards of the big temple of vaudeville on Twelfth street. The bill is all froth, all daintiness, all sparkle and with class marked upon it at every stage. Two big crowds packed the theater and gave welcome to the artists, indicating in no uncertain way their delight in the "all vaudeville" bill—the first of this season.

A wonderful dancing spectacle is that which Miss Evan-Burrows Fontaine with her company of classic dancers contribute to the bill. Miss Fontaine is a young lady who traces her lineage back to Patrick Henry. Be that as it may she is undoubtedly a marvelous dancer and her company give some of the most beautiful pictures ever seen on an Oakland stage.

Claire Vincent with a company of players provide the dramatic tid bit of the show in a sketch called "The Recall."

Walter Brower was to the front with a budget of witty stories told in a new way, all of them guaranteed to chase away the blues.

An astounding novelty is that which Kallyama, a young Japanese, puts forth. The man must really be seen to be appreciated. It is almost impossible to describe every thing he does. He writes letters upside down and backwards, then entire words picked out by the audience the letters of which he alternates and writes some of them upside down and forward and others upside down and backwards. His greatest feat, however, is with the performance of four different mental operations at the same time. While facing the audience with his right hand behind his back, he spells words and writes headlines from the daily papers and the same time carries on conversations with one or more persons in the audience. To say that he is a wonder is putting it mildly.

The Lunette Sisters are aerial dancers of a new kind. They dance in the air and on the stage as well and provided a dashing finish to a wonderful bill.

Struan Robertson, a tenor with a superb voice, gave music lovers a treat.

The program begins with a clever dancing hit done by the Morin Sisters who were formerly features of the "Canary Cottage" company.

A Burton Holmes travelogue completes the bill at the finish, while a Paramount magazine pictograph is seen at the opening before the show.

OAKLAND PANTAGES

Welch, Healy and Montrose, famous old vaudevillians, return to Oakland this week in what, measured by laughs, is the biggest comedy success they have ever offered. This lively team of comedians has always been good for many laughs—"but with their new 'Argument,'" as they term it, they have surpassed even themselves.

There are other big successes on the bill also this week—in fact, it is hard to pick out any single "best bet." The Creole band is perhaps the most novel offering. They offer what is termed "Wild and Untamed Harmony," "Macerated Syncopation." They do a number of weird tricks with music, but are clever musicians for all that—in fact they have to be to perform their striking musical feats.

Claudia Coleman gives a few impressions, assisted by a multitude of hats. She has a hat for every type—and varies this by giving every type with one hat when the first part of her program is done. She is an artistic comedienne.

A breath of the old heather comes with Nan Gray, and her Scotch songs. A real Scotchwoman is new to the stage and this one is irresistible. She is a feminine Harry Lauder without Lauder's broadness of comedy. Incidentally, she is good to look upon, which counts for much.

Kartell, the juggler, offers difficult feats while balancing himself on the slack wire. His offering is unique. The big musical piece of the bill is "The Society Buds," a pretentious act last seen in the west on a "big time" circuit. "The Criminal Stain" is the film feature.

SUBMARINE CONTROVERSY

The United States government has taken the only course open to it in rejecting the impossible request of the allies who asked that we deny asylum to Germany's submarines, an opinion which is shared in by the press of the nation generally, regardless of political affiliations. This attitude is expressed by the Fresno Herald in the following:

The allies pleaded that submarines are a type distinct from all others; that they are hard to recognize and identify. The allies even hinted that they might, inadvertently of course, sink one of our own submarines, thinking it belonged to Germany.

The United States has answered that the allies must carry the responsibility for any such action because this government does not propose to shut off the German undersea craft.

England and her friends has attempted to make their own law when they said:

"In view of the development of submarine navigation, and by reason of acts which in the present circumstances may be unfortunately expected from enemy submarines, the allied governments consider it necessary, in order not only to safeguard their belligerent rights and liberty of commercial navigation, but also to avoid risks of dispute, to urge neutral governments to take effective measures, if they have not already done so, with a view to preventing belligerent submarine vessels, whatever the purpose to which they are put, from making use of neutral waters, roadsteads and ports."

And we answered in this entirely proper and pleasing manner:

"The government of the United States reserves its liberty of action in all respects and will treat such vessels as, in its opinion, becomes the action of a power which may be said to have taken the first steps toward establishing the principles of neutrality and which for over a century has maintained those principles in the traditional spirit and high sense of impartiality in which they were conceived."

In order, however, that there should be no misunderstanding as to the attitude of the United States, the government of the United States announces to the allied powers that it holds it to be the duty of belligerent powers to distinguish between submarines of neutral and belligerent nationality, and that responsibility for any conflict that may arise between belligerent warships and neutral submarines, on account of neglect of a belligerent to so distinguish between these classes of submarines, must rest entirely upon the negligent power."

This is no more than the allies deserve. They have been rebuked by this government and properly so. The United States has let it be known that the nations of Europe are not dictate to her one step in this submarine controversy.

That the U-53, in all her maneuvers, did not violate any section of international law is a good indication that the note we have sent in reply to England and her allies was eminently proper one.

What we have to fear is not the reply, but the action that should keep company with the reply. It does no good for the United States to make such answers if there is to be no action to back the stand.

BRITISH SPECIE PAYMENT

The question, then, with which the people of the United Kingdom are confronted is, says the London Statist, ought we to do as we did in the great war against revolutionary France, suspend specie payments, or ought we to show that we are rich enough and ingenious enough to do what no other nation ever has done hitherto and go on paying in gold till peace returns? The answer, we take it, to the question is: "That depends on the length of the war." If the great general staffs of the Entente allies can reasonably assure the British government that the war will not last much more than, say, six or eight months, the government clearly ought to exhaust its ingenuity before suspending specie payments.

On the other hand, if there are reasonable grounds for thinking that the war will last throughout the next year, and possibly longer, it seems safe to predict that specie payments cannot be maintained to the end. If any reader asks, granting that all honorable persons desire to fulfill their contracts in the spirit as well as in the letter, and granting further, that common sense dictates that after a certain time experience convinces us that the specie payments cannot be maintained, will very grave and injurious consequences follow? The consequences will be simply that the British credit will decline; that the value of the pound will not remain what it has been; that it will fall.

In plain English, if we cannot pay in gold, we shall have to pay in either Bank of England notes, or in government notes, or in some kind of undertaking by the government that the payments shall be met. If that were to happen, the Bank of England note or the government note would not rank as high as the sovereign, and, consequently, the prices of everything we should buy abroad would rise. The real economic difference, then, between maintaining specie payments and suspending them is that there will be a general rise in the price of everything we buy abroad and naturally prices at home will follow. The cost of war, then, will be increased.

But there the injury will stop. It may be said we shall have broken our contracts. But if we are compelled to do so, the world will see we have done it not through dishonesty, but under compulsion, and the world knows that the British empire is rich enough and powerful enough to resume specie payments very soon after peace returns. Recollect that about two-thirds of the whole gold supply of the world comes from mines within the British empire. Therefore, we have the means of resuming specie payments if we are forced to suspend them.

How many sides has Pancho Villa? He has already been surrounded on four sides and is still at large, with only one good leg.

The world war, the greatest news story of all time, is really becoming monotonous, and there is more interest in the outcome of the world's series.

They are paying a certain gentleman a fabulous salary for serving as press agent for Fairbanks. If he can get any publicity for Fairbanks he deserves a fabulous salary.

ALUMNI READY TO NOVEL DANCING SOCIAL

With a satisfactory and detailed plan agreed upon by the executive committee of the R. U. H. S. Alumni association for the harvest dance at the Richmond clubhouse October 28, the committee today announced its confidence in the affair as being the greatest social success yet attained by the Alumni, which considering the numerous brilliant senior balls, is a high mark to be set.

The scene in which the dance will be given will undoubtedly be the most novel seen in Richmond. Corn shocks, hay stacks, boxes of red apples, pails of fresh cider, the latest of music by the best of musicians, and several score of happy couples of "farm hands and farmers' daughters, everyone in their humble best, and the whole scene bathed in the golden light of a harvest moon rising over the corn tassels of St. Slocum's quarter section—such is the scene which the present executive committee is planning for the pleasure of Richmond's young elite.

HAYWARDS AND RICHMOND IN A 3 TO 3 SCORE

Richmond 3; Haywards 3.

That was the result of the rugby game Saturday after Richmond and Haywards battled for forty minutes Saturday at the Twenty-third street grounds in an effort to change it.

George Peres, center three-quarter for the Richmond team, hurtled across the Haywards goal with the three points which tied the score. Hardly had play been called again when he was knocked unconscious in a tackle.

Although outweighed in both scrum and back-field, the local rugby fifteen put up a hard fight. The tie will be played off November 4. On October 28 the Richmond team will oppose the Centerville rugger.

EX-LEAGUERS IN STELLAR ROLE FOR GAME

The Merced Bears—with a line-up that should make any club in the Coast league hustle went down to defeat at Richmond yesterday, 6 to 1. The game was the deciding one of a series of three between Merced and Richmond, and Merced is eliminated from the proposed series with the winner of the Trolley league championship.

Artie Benham was hit hard in the first inning, a home run by Collins with one on being responsible for two of the runs. Four runs went over in this inning. Pop Arlett pitched a grand game for Richmond, holding Merced to six hits.

Richmond's regular team, under command of Chick Autrey, was strengthened by Catcher Al Walters of the New York Americans and Outfielder Dave Hillyard of Vernon, Chief Johnson of Vernon was on the bench.

Merced had for its battery Benham and Rowdy Elliott. At first was Cliff McCarl, at second Frank Gay, at third Oscar Vitt of the Detroit Tigers, at short Sammy Bohne of the St. Louis Cardinals, and in the outfield Monte Pfyf, George Diehl and Otto Hess, the hard-hitting pinch hitter of the Vernon club. The slugging strength of the team went for nothing, however, for in nearly every opportunity for scoring that presented itself somebody hit into a double play. The game drew an unusually large crowd.

CAMEOS AND PAISLEY SHAWLS

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Every second woman one sees sports a cameo medallion as a brooch or pendant, and so perfectly do these blend with present modes that one wonders that they have been so little seen. Paisley shawls have been requisitioned to make fascinating evening wraps and for fashionable sets of accessories, of hat, cape and bag.

BROADCLOTHS AND VELOURS
 Broadcloths and velours lead in popularity for suits and coats, with satin very much used for garments a bit more elegant in effect. Coats, short or long, are pretty sure to ripple well over the hips, and to have impressive adjustable collars of cape-like proportions when thrown back, and assuming up-standing directoire lines when buttoned up to the throat. As the season progresses it is evident that colors will be as much worn as during the past summer, in shades a bit richer and deeper as befits the heavier fabrics, for street wear, but not a whit subdued for evening frocks which sport the most impressive colors, and make them more pronounced with gleaming tinsel and spangle embroideries.

PEPLUM BLOUSES
 The Chinese and jacket blouses, sent over from Paris, have set the style running in a new direction for the suit waists that everyone buys or has made at this time of year. A Cheruit blouse, fashioned of blue crepe de chine hand embroidered in silver, is cut on simple peasant blouse lines, like the Chinese jacket which it suggests. Loosely belted and dropping below the hips, this has a novel placement of pockets which are a feature of many of this season's waists. Another blouse from the same maker has the full skirt and sleeves fashioned of plain georgette crepe. The bodice of figured silk forming a little sleeveless jacket with small revers, and with pockets, like a man's vest on either side of the front. A narrow belt of patent leather finishes this at the waist.

HEAD TRIMMINGS
 Some of the most effective trimmings on dresses and blouse waists consist of simple line designs wrought in beads. Steel beads are especially liked, but one can not go wrong with beads of any color, or with any mixture of colors that fancy may suggest. Wool embroideries in Oriental colors in eastern designs are quickly accomplished and very much worn on serges and satins, and are often accompanied by short wool fringes at the edge of capes, collars or up-standing cuffs.

SLEEVES

Sleeves in daytime frocks are long and, as a rule, fit the arm well from wrist to elbow, with just enough fullness above the pleat nicely at the back of the shoulder line. The coat sleeves follow the contour of the arm closely in suit coats, but in top coats are gullity of every degree of looseness and fullness that suggests itself to the designers. Long mouspetaire cuffs are very much worn, both as part of the coat trimming and in separate cuffs or white or colored broadcloth that come in sets to match fancy collars worn with coats and coat dresses.

The same sort of sets developed in fur will be exploited as soon as the weather permits, though few have waited for suitable temperature to don fur scarfs, collars and capes.

LININGS

Fancy linings are seen in all sorts of coats with pretensions of dressiness—though utilitarian garments usually are finished with matching linings of satin. Nothing is too elegant for lining an evening wrap of fur or pile fabric, though the usual rule holds of plain tones with brocades whether the brocade is outside or inside the garment.

"HUSBAND AND WIFE" STRONG DRAMA AT RICHMOND THEATRE

MAE MURRAY, LASKY-PARAMOUNT

MAE MURRAY, Paramount picture star, who will appear at the Richmond Theatre shortly in "The Big Sister" play of the London slums.

"Husband and Wife," a strong dramatic play written by Charles Kenyon, author of "Kindling," and given its premiere at the Forty-eighth street theater, New York, where the newspapers pronounced it one of the most extraordinary plays of modern times, with a strong and appealing moral; all in all, one of the few domestic dramas which met the undivided approval of the metropolitan newspaper critics.

Staged under William A. Brady supervision, it has now been made into a motion picture also under Mr. Brady's critical eye, and will be shown at the Richmond theatre today and tomorrow. This picture marks the first of the Brady all-star casts, which includes Ethel Clayton, Holbrook Blinn, Emmett Corrigan, Gerda Holmes Montague Love, Dion Titheradge and Little Medge Evans.

A Paramount pictograph and a Pathe news film will also be shown in conjunction with "Husband and Wife."

ALAMEDA MAN SAYS HE WAS TREATED LIKE PASTOR

before the three councilmen in secret session and asked to wait outside until they were through, in case they wanted me again, and although my character was attacked by three of the lowest lawyers in California I was given no hint of the matter or ever given a chance to refute their lies. Even after the meeting when one of the three men took me back to my place in his auto he never uttered a word about the reputed letters mentioned in the Independent and I have only the paper to go by. I wonder what the people of your city think of that kind of treatment to a stranger who tried only to do your city a good turn by reporting the two officers?

I intend to appear before your council this evening and ask for the privilege of seeing the reputed letters and answering them, and when I show your council some legal documents and letters written by the Oakland attorneys mentioned, your people will have a genuine sensation they will not forget for many a moon. There are some business men and attorneys in your city who will bear my statements out.

IF INSTALLMENTS WILL BUY YOUR HOUSE THEY'LL BUY YOUR CLOTHES, TOO, SIR!

A man would be foolish to do without a comfortable home of his own until he had saved every cent of the price. Yet not many years ago it was an unusual thing for a family to undertake the purchase of a home on installment payments. Nowadays people of moderate means rarely do it any other way.

Just so is the system of paying cash for clothes fast becoming old-fashioned and obsolete. CHERRY'S, the most popular Credit Clothing Store, has had much to do with this because CHERRY'S INSTALLMENT SYSTEM is "four-square" and sound in principle.

You've heard how splendidly it works, no doubt. If you haven't you'll spend half an hour in Cherry's shop, any time. Look around at the immense varieties of the latest Autumn Suits and Overcoats. See how easily you can buy one on Weekly or Monthly Payments, with only a small sum down.

Probably nearly every man in town knows where CHERRY'S store is, at 528 13th street, between Clay and Washington. The ladies' exclusive shop is across the way at 515 13th street. San Francisco has two stores, one at 2400 Mission street, corner 20th, and 1009 Market street, above 6th street. The others are in Tacoma, Portland, Los Angeles and Sacramento.—Adv.

District Manager S. S. Oppenheimer of the Praetorians was in town today settling the claims of Dr. H. N. Barney, medical examiner of that lodge, who died last week.
